Song

*Oh, Lexington, we're rooting for you;
And you've got to win this game.
Oh, Lexington, we're rooting for you
For the sake of Lexington's name.
Go down that field and make a touchdown
With that good old pep and fight,
And when this grand old game is over,
Lexington will shine tonight.*

*Lexington team, Lexington team,
Take that ball right through.
Show old Bedford you can beat them;
Now it's up to you—*

*Rah! Rah! Rah!
Lexington team, Lexington team,
Fight for all your fame.
Fight! fight! fight! fight!
And we will win this game.*

Dedication

“TO THE making of many books, there is no end”; but to the selection and care of the same, there are limits whose bounds should be well guarded by constant vigilance. It is for just that service through many years that we dedicate this CRYSTAL to

Department of Home Economics

When school opened in September, a new department had been added to the curriculum. It was a home economics course, offering two units to girls interested in learning to cook, sew, decorate homes, and manage a home. Two classes of sophomore, junior, and senior girls—a total of twenty-nine were enrolled. Miss Mary Warwick Dunlap was appointed as teacher, but an accident prevented her taking over her duties until the beginning of the mid-term. The department was successfully launched under the able direction of Mrs. Harry Tardy. Her first unit was on interior decorating and sewing. The girls decorated their rooms in a most tasteful manner. The department was well equipped by the School Board, with a range, refrigerator, hot water heater, all operated by gas. Built-in cabinets, sewing machines, tables, books and other necessary equipment have been added.

Various special lunches have been served from time to time. The morning section of the class served luncheon for the women members of the faculty and Miss Mary Gillock acted as hostess. The afternoon section had as their luncheon guests Miss Hamilton, Miss Brame, Mrs. Tardy, Mr. Woodson, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Waddell and Mr. Harlow. Miss Maybell Smith was hostess.

Both classes have made evening dresses, sport dresses, house coats and knitted coats and knitted sweaters as a part of their training in sewing.

Football

FRANCIS HICKMAN.....Captain

OSCAR SMITH.....Manager

R. H. WOODSON.....Coach

LEXINGTON High School's football season was considered a very successful one by Coach Woodson, with four out of eight wins.

Lexington opened the season with Waynesboro, defeating them 12 to 0. Low Moor was taken in stride to the score of 6 to 0. The next game was played with Harrisonburg under the arcs, and being unused to night football, the team was unable to make such a good showing, coming out on the short end of a 6 to 0 score. Covington swept over the Scarlet Hurricane to the tune of 20 to 0, but the next week saw Lexington defeating a fighting Staunton team by the identical score that marked the outcome of last year's game, 6 to 0. On the Monday following this game, reports were issued and Coach Woodson discovered that eight of the members of his squad did not report for practice, namely: Holland, Swink, G. O'Connor, Sipolski, Fitch, Sheridan, Womeldorf, and F. O'Connor.

This, however, did not stop Woodson, for he put a fast, light team on the field to face Hot Springs, but, due to inexperience, L. H. S. was defeated 12 to 0. A touchdown on the first play and the only extra point made all season defeated Bedford, 7 to 6. Clifton Forge ran wild over the Lexington eleven and piled up a score of 39 to 0.

Coach Woodson has prophesied that he will be able to put a team on the field which will average one hundred and sixty pounds per man. He has been at a disadvantage since his arrival here, three years ago, with such small teams, but with a few exceptions he has turned out teams that have done credit to Lexington High School.

R. H. WOODSON.....Coach

WHEN practice started, five letter men from last year's team reported. These men, John Brown, Billy Goforth, B. C. Tolley, Charles Swink and Stuart Faison, were to form the nucleus of Coach Woodson's quintet for this season.

The end of the season found the L. H. S. fast-stepping five among the six teams in the District VI Tournament which was held at Washington and Lee, March 4-5. Lexington reached the finals to be put down by Fincastle.

Three seniors, Goforth, Brown and Tolley, closed their basket ball careers at Lexington High, leaving three berths which will be hard to fill. Coach Woodson has an undefeated Junior Varsity to choose from, however, and the vacant posts will be filled by some members of this squad, among whom are M. Cauley, L. King and Hickman.

Co-Captain Brown led the team in scoring this year, accounting for 153 points, while Swink was second with 103.

Baseball

WITH M. Cauley, C. Swink, Faison, Irvine, Goforth, Brown and McCoy, letter men of last year, back, Coach Woodson expects to have a good foundation for this year's team. The call has been issued for all candidates to report and about twenty boys have answered. Included in this number are several last year's reserves who are out to make the team this year. With the additional material from the freshman and sophomore ranks, Coach Woodson expects to have a team of great promise.

BACK—Lauderdale, Coach Brame, J. Williams.
MIDDLE—Brown, E. Billock, Busick, McKemy, Weeks, Phalen.
FRONT—L. Williams, Woodward, McCormick (Captain), Crist, Knapp, M. Gillock.

Girls' Basket Ball

UNDER the skillful coaching of Miss Brame, the girls' basket ball team showed up very well this year, considering the small number of girls that reported for practice. The entire team will be back next year, with the exception of Loraine Williams, who will be lost on account of graduation.

What the team lacked in height was made up for in speed and accuracy of shooting. Ruby McCormick, captain and stellar forward, outwitted her guard time after time to ring up points for Lexington.

To interest the girls in basket ball, Miss Brame, aided by her regular basket ball squad, organized an intermural basket ball tournament for the Junior, Sophomore and Freshman classes. From this turnout, Miss Brame hopes to find material for next year's varsity.

Student Government 1937-1938

STUDENT GOVERNMENT in Lexington High School has been very efficient this year. Some of the amendments to the constitution, which were made by preceding Executive Committees, have been put into effect for the first time. The election of members to represent the Freshman Class was held after the end of the first semester, in order that first-year students might become well acquainted with each other before choosing their representatives. Members of the present organization anticipate even a more able and successful committee for the high school in years to come.

"The King's treasures are the riches to be found in books."

MRS. BOYKIN has made this more than true, for the library is a veritable storehouse of precious gems. No matter what type of treasure is sought, it can be quickly and easily obtained ; nor is there any need for a pick in this modern day of treasure hunting, for one or another of the library committee is always on hand to assist in the search. The three thousand four hundred books in our library include a wide selection accumulated year by year. Untiring in her efforts, Mrs. Boykin has used the utmost care to make it possible for every student to receive the maximum benefit.

Dreaming When I Shouldn't Be

WE ARE standing on the front porch of the school when a shrill, ill-sounding, yet familiar clatter permeates the atmosphere, which was, prior to this moment, very pleasant. It's the bell which announces the beginning of another class.

Everyone seems to rush toward the classroom door as if there were a great treat waiting within; the perpetual buzzing is penetrated by the loud voices of a couple of overgrown youths, who appear to be the height of sartorial perfection and who, apparently, have a great desire to become the center of attraction.

Now the room is fairly quiet, but wait! Here comes a couple of girls who don't belong in this class. But I shan't bother about them; they're just a couple of "stay behinds" who have a monopoly on upsetting the equilibrium of this particular class about which I'm writing, or so it seems, for they have stuck to it for seven months, and I believe the class would feel lost if they should suddenly, and without warning, be on time.

They're gone now and, after straining her vocal chords and performing weird gyrations with the external portion of her oral cavity, the teacher has quiet to settle very slowly over the room.

Teacher: "Johnny, tell me something about Irving Poe."

Johnny reddens, a lump seems to appear in his throat and I thought at first that he wouldn't reply, but not Johnny! He said meekly, "I don't know."

Teacher: "Did you study?"

Johnny: "Yes."

Teacher: "Then why don't you know?"

Johnny: "I couldn't understand it."

Teacher: "Can't understand English! All right, Sally, you tell me."

Sally: "I know about Brown White, but I don't know about Irving Poe."

Teacher: "Doesn't anyone know his lesson?" No reply—then: "Everyone read the lesson over now—I'll give you ten minutes."

Reluctantly, I start reading; I'm beginning to become interested in the lesson when I notice the word, "Drill." I say it over in my mind. Smith, who left school and joined the army, will get plenty of it. Boy, oh, boy! Will he be drilled? Wonder why he quit school? Well, he's in the army now; has to stay four years, whether he likes it or not! I hope he likes it. He wasn't any too fond of obeying his teacher but, poor boy, it'll be different with the sergeant, lieutenant and captain. He'll obey them and like it, or wish he had liked it. Well, I hope they—

"Now, who can give me the life of Irving Poe?" comes from the teacher.

It dawns upon my mind that I haven't read about him; what an absurd question, anyhow. How could anyone give her his life when it was taken years ago by his Creator? I doubt if the particles of his dust could be detected without the use of a microscope! Funny people, these teachers. Who else would expect a person to—

"Raymond, give me his life," strikes upon me as lightning from an azure sky. I'm taken unawares! What can I do? From my feelings, I think that every inch of my epidermis above my collar has become crimson and, before I'm able to utter a sound, the question has gone to Sarah Johnson, the star of the class. How she gave his life! But I was just getting ready to say that, if "she" had only given me time.

Teacher: "Open your books at page six hundred and twenty-five. Tommy, what does 'anticipated' mean?"

Tommy: "It's the past tense of anticipate, which means to look forward to."

The contents of my cranium are again liquefied and flow into the channels of catastrophes that "almost never happened" but did, because the poor victims of them couldn't look forward and see the disaster.

Back in May, nineteen hundred and twelve, the captain of the "Titanic" never anticipated hitting an iceberg with his unsinkable ship, although he had been warned by the wireless operators of other ships of the bergs in his vicinity. The "Californian" was within twelve miles of the "Titanic" when the latter sank. The wireless operator, on duty for sixteen hours, at midnight took off his earphones and went to sleep. At twelve-thirty A. M. his apparatus was receiving SOS's, but there was no one to hear them. Had there been a second operator, all of the fifteen hundred lives aboard the "Titanic" might have been saved; as it was, only about seven hundred were rescued. The wireless operator had no way of looking forward to the collision of the boat and iceberg.

One of the greatest catastrophes in the annals of the United States occurred when the high school building at New London, Texas, was laid to ruins by a gas explosion. At three-five P. M. the auditorium was filled with happy, active youths who were more or less elated over the fact that school was nearly out. At three-ten a terrific explosion rent the air and by three-twelve there was a huge pile of debris, intermingled with dead or dying children. They had anticipated being dismissed for the day, but not this huge life-taking explosion.

What a wonderful improvement to humanity if man could be endowed with a sixth sense with which he could look into the future! If it were for only an hour's time in advance, these aforementioned catastrophes could have been prevented. Even if—

"Take the next two ———s for tomorrow, the other class is ahead of you now," says the teacher as the bell rings. It seems to have a mirthful tinkle now, for I can go to the study hall and read the new Reader's Digest.—RAYMOND RULEY, '39.

A Prayer

*For all the wrongs that I have done today,
For all the ways in which I've spoiled Thy day,
For all the hate and jealousy—I pray,
Father, forgive me.*

*For all the unkind words which I have said,
For all the hearts that at my hands have bled,
For all the hundred stumbling blocks I've spread,
Father, forgive me.*

—JEAN VINSON.

*The day is dark and dreary;
The clock upon the wall
Ticks the hours in and out
Like a dripping water spout
Which never stops at all.*

—A FRESHMAN.

*Spring! Spring! the bird is on the wing—
My word, how absurd!
I thought the wing was on the bird.*

—A SOPHOMORE.

*Teachers work with all their might;
Trying hard, they make us feel
That English, history, math and French
Stand for everything we need.*

*But Mother Nature taught us first;
Squirrels showed us how to play,
Robins, larks, and blue-birds,
How to work and still be gay.*

—MARY MOORE McCORKLE.

What Went On '37-'38

SEPTEMBER. School opens again just as sure as death and taxes. . . . As usual, freshmen appear to be smaller, to us. . . . We have two new teachers this year, Miss Brame and Mrs. Harry Tardy (substitute for Miss Dunlap). . . . We wonder if they give long assignments. . . . A course of Domestic Science has been added. . . . What fun it will be to learn home-making. . . . Mr. Waddell calls attention in assembly to an editorial, "Are We to Become a Nation of Sissies?" . . . That's something to think about twice, anyhow. . . . The football heroes (?) are practicing regularly. . . . We hope to have a successful season. . . . First pep assembly to acquaint the freshmen with the songs and yells for the game with Low Moor. . . . Everyone responded warmly.

OCTOBER. Mr. Carlton Prickett addressed us in assembly for his last time before leaving Lexington. . . . His advice to us was, "Always do your best". . . . Another pep meeting with the hope that we'll conquer Covington. . . . The cheer leaders are Frances Murray, Mary Gillock and Ruby McCormick. . . . Report cards throw the football team for a loss, with only thirteen men left on the squad. . . . Tough luck, Mr. Woodson. . . . Mr. Thompson is still looking at stars—but only through a telescope. . . . This is a rare opportunity, girls. . . . We celebrate the 150th anniversary of the drafting of the Constitution of the United States by having Professor Raymond Johnson as a speaker.

NOVEMBER. The last pep assembly was a huge success. . . . The football season is a thing of the past. . . . We had several interesting talks in assembly this month. . . . Mr. Waddell on "Character," Doctor George H. Denny on "Chance Favors the Prepared Mind," Miss Elliot on "My Trip to Paris". . . . Pupils returning from Thanksgiving holidays looking pounds heavier. . . . Report cards again. . . . Don't look so sad, folks, the worst is yet to come.

DECEMBER. The football men receive their monograms. . . . Red ones this year. . . . Colorful and dramatic talk in assembly by Doctor Gaines on "The Story of Joseph" . . . . First dance ever held in high school auditorium on December tenth. . . . Music was transcribed. . . . May there be many more like it! . . . Miss Sieg's subject for assembly was, "My Trip Abroad Last Summer". . . . Another dance, better than the first. . . . This one sponsored by the Monogram Club. . . . "A School Room in Virginia One Hundred Years Ago," an original play, written by the Sophomore Class, was presented in assembly . . . . Student body warmly sang Christmas carols. . . . Christmas holidays at last. . . . It takes too long for them to arrive.

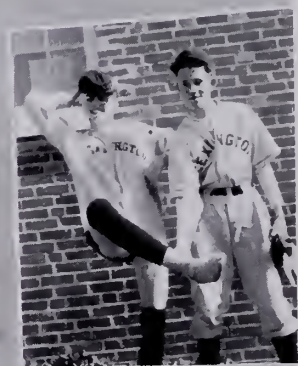

JANUARY. New Year's resolutions are all over the place. . . . Girls' hair styles are as changeable as the weather. . . . Inverted bangs seem most popular. . . . Buzz, buzz, the favorite topic of conversation is the Nuckols-Murray marriage. . . . Isn't love grand? . . . . Back to the old grind once more with the time between us and examinations getting dangerously shorter. . . . Exams are over. . . . Reports break the news. . . . Election of the "Hall of Fame". . . . Who is handsome this year? . . . . The new semester starts with the return of Miss Dunlap. . . . We're glad to have her with us, but we regret the loss of Mrs. Harry Tardy.

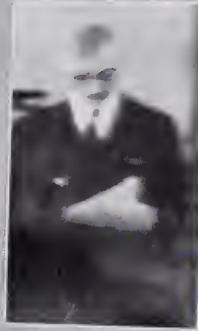

FEBRUARY. Basket ball draws the crowd, as usual. . . . Maybe it's because of our excellent team. . . . Girl break dance was a great hit with the fairer sex. . . . But what is the masculine opinion? . . . . The English classes are competing in a word contest. . . . All dictionaries are in use. . . . A duel scene from "Monsieur Beaucaire," presented by Bobby Seal and Norvelle Moses, was most popular in assembly. . . . The coronation of King George VI was humorously, as well as vividly, described by Reverend John H. Gray. . . . Washington's birthday breaks the monotony. . . . Reverend Kerr Taylor, missionary from China, gave us a helpful sermon.

MARCH. The war situation in China was briefly described to us by Reverend Raymond Womeldorf. . . . Is our sympathy with Japan? . . . . or China? . . . . White shoes are popular again. . . . Captain I. G. Foster, of V. M. I., formerly with the Washington Observatory, spoke to us in assembly on "Astronomy". . . . Another set of monthly grades. . . . Basket ball season closes. . . . Girls receive their monograms. . . . First Day of Spring. . . . Aren't we glad!

APRIL. Seniors frantically working on their thesis. . . . The time limit is shorter this year. . . . Time off for the Easter holidays. . . . Everyone joins the Easter parade. . . . And the CRYSTAL goes quietly to press, with Noisy's help.
